The mission of the National Association for Civil War Brass Music, Inc. (NACWBM) is to collect, preserve and make available for research and performance both the music and the instruments of American brass bands of the mid-19th century, particularly military bands and bugles of the American Civil War, and to present such music in public performances for the purpose of educating the general public and furthering public awareness and understanding of this important part of our American cultural heritage. To these ends, the NACWBM will:

- Present historically accurate and musically excellent recreations of Union and Confederate Civil War military brass bands, featuring professional-caliber musicians and music historians performing mid-19th century musical compositions and arrangements on original brass instruments, wearing historically accurate reproductions of original military band uniforms of the era;
- Acquire, preserve and catalog music and musical instruction manuals of the mid-19th century and make them available for researchers, scholars, and other musicians interested in this resource;
- Collect, restore and preserve original brass instruments of the mid-19th century and make them accessible to the public through live and recorded performances which illustrate the unique sound and character of these historic instruments;
- Educate musicians seeking to re-create the roles of bandsmen and field musicians of the Civil War era in the arena of living history;
- Conduct thorough and scholarly research on Civil War brass bands, mid-19th century brass music, military music, brass instruments and related topics and make this information widely available via the Internet, publication in articles and books, and public presentations such as concerts, lectures, and demonstrations.
